Keynote Presentations:

"How to Build Inner Strength for Victory in the Game of Life"

In sports, teams don't win on game day. They win from hard work and discipline in practice well before they hit the field. The same is true in life. To become victorious in life, we must build our inner strength by lifting the weights of life's challenges. In this presentation, Greg turns the meeting room into a locker room and reveals three keys your attendees will be able to use immediately to build inner strength!

"Silencing the Negative Voice Within"

In this program, Greg reveals his greatest challenge: No, it is not weakness from muscular dystrophy. It is not congestive heart failure. Greg's greatest challenge is the negative voice that speaks to him from within, constantly reminding him of his inadequacies and revealing the reasons why he will fail. That same voice is within us all. In dramatic fashion, Greg personifies that voice on stage! In character, "The Voice" boasts of times it tormented Greg, yet admits defeat accredited to Greg's "Inner Strength." After this speech, your group will never have a problem with negative self talk.

Self-Def!

Greg reveals the importance of self-definition. How to get comfortable with being different and unique. How to ignore the labels that other people attach and create your own.

Positive Addictions

How to avoid negative addictions like drug and alcohol use, and how to discover and embrace positive addictions. How to magnify the feeling of success to such a natural high that it overwhelms the artificial alternative.
